ANTI-WAR DEMONSTRATIONS DISRUPT PHYSICISA CORRESDICT IN TRIESTE, ITALY

By Schofield Coryell

physicists, meeting to discuss the general conference of "The Physicists Conception of the Modid," are prevented from holding its scheduled sessions in a the Italian University of Trieste last month (September 18-25). Anti-war activists did the job by denouncing the presence of scientists engaged in a the production and development of weapons of destruction used by the U.S. military against the Vietnamese people.

The conference was organized by the International Centre of Theoretical Physics — Become the first scheduled session could get under way as the University, a group of over three hundred anti-war militants students and workers gathered to James, trate against the key role of the war scientists in the development of weaponry used in Vietnam. I mong the 50 scientists participating in the Contest rence were many who had worked with the Jason Committee of the institute for Defense Analysis, and it was against them particularly that the demonstration was directed.

In the face of the protest, the University was soon ringed with police, and it was under their protection that the physicists left the University to hald their deliberations in a suburb of Triestal about 65 miles away in the building of the inspectical Physics Center of Miramare. The demonstrations who tried to go there to continue their protests were intercepted and arrested by the police.

Finally, the Director of the Center of Theoratical Physics agreed to accept a delegation of fifty anti-war demonstrators who entered the hall and distributed pamphlets and leaflets exposing the Jason Committee and the i.D.A. One of them read a statement denouncing the use of science for the destruction of life.

Among the scientists participating in the physicists conference were the Americans Professor Weinberg of M.I.T.; Prof. Wheeler of Princeton, a close collaborator of the Pentagon; Prof. Townes of the University of California, Nobel Prize-Winner and inventor of the laser, and Professor Wigner of Princeton, a fervent supporter of the Victoum war. During the distribution of anti-war leaflets and the reading of an anti-war statement, the assembled scientists failed to react except for Wigner, who shouted "i am proud of your accusations!" and Wheeler, who started writing insults on the blackboard until he was stopped by the other scientists to "preserve dignity."

The protest was organized by a broad spectrum of organizations including the University Truchima Solidarity Committee, the Milan Vietnam Committee, University sections of the Societist and Communist Parties, and independent leftwing magnements such as the Manifesto group and the Lotte Continua group. They were joined by a deregation of French scientists who had organized a successful action against the Americus, was scientist Murray Gell-Maniat the College de France in July.

The actions against Gell-Man in Paris and aguarat and tradite conference are the signs cir a new Lendency -- the organization of demonstrations everywhere against the participation it sale is its in the production of weapons of three Amother example of such action took place ide tale of the Summer School of Theoretical Physics as Cargesse (Corsica). The students participating in the seminar protested the participation of the American scientist and Jason Committee member, Sidney Drell of Stanford University. When they demanded that Drell answer their questions about his collaboration with the war machine, the Professor refused to discuss and the Director suddenly declared the school closed for the summer, a week ahead of the scheduled closing.

NEW YORK (LNS) --"It is clear that the supply of Cuban books, newspapers, periodicals, statistical data, political documents, films and other study materials presently available in the United Stares is inadequate," reads the pampMlet distributed by the newly opened Center for Cuban Studies in New York City.

Its purposes are rather clear: "We think that the public should be infromed about all aspects of Cuban life today and further, that access to information is not a privilege but a constitutional right. In order to facilitate this, we have joined together to form the Cuban Studies Center."

But in order to do this, the Center needs all types of materials that are sometimes hard to find. They are now in the pracess of collecting and cataloguing materials on Cuba since 1959 for a lot of these are scattered about and not centralized in one place.

So, people who have visited Cuba in the last thirteen years and brought back materials on life ther are requested to send them to the Center.

The Center has specific services in mind, and among them are: serving as a clearing-house for information wanted about work on Cuba already done since there is now no central source to obtain wit; provide a reading room in New York Ciry; sponsor films; give Spanish classes: provide for a speaker's bureau and give out information for people intending to visit Cuba.

The Center alleady has complete editions of Bohamia and Granma and doesn't need any more so don't send these if you have them.

Send your contribution and requests for more information to: Center for Cuban Studies, 186 West 4th Street, New York, New York, 10014. Phone (212) AL5-7966.
